

NEW YORK OFFICERS DIE FROM WOUNDS

Lieut. C. W. Henry and Capt.
T. A. O'Brien Victims in Last Battles.

ANOTHER FORESAW END
Lieut. Borcher, New Jersey
Man, Regretted Fate of Foreign Burial.

Lieut. Clifford West Henry, who died in France October 16 of wounds received at St. Mihiel, was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira W. Henry of New York and Greenwich, Conn. He was born in New York city in 1882 and entered Leavenworth in the fall of 1914. He left college in his senior year to enter the Army Service School at Fort Leavenworth, being assigned to the Forty-sixth Infantry upon his graduation. Almost immediately he was detailed to Camp Gordon, Georgia, as master of the bayonet.

Lieut. Henry fought for two days at St. Mihiel without harm and was then wounded in the leg and abdomen. The infantry had advanced so rapidly that they had outdistanced their supporting artillery and it became necessary to take machine gun nests in hand to hand fighting. Lieut. Henry's Captain was wounded and his company suffered heavy losses. He had crawled into a trenching a battery and was leading his men forward through the woods when he was hit by fragments of a bomb dropped from an airplane.

In writing of his death one of Lieut. Henry's men said that he gave his life to save others and that his company felt his loss to be irreparable. His body will eventually be brought back from France and at his own request will be buried in the Sound Beach section of Greenwich.

Veteran of 69th Dead of Wounds.

Capt. Thomas A. O'Brien of the Twenty-ninth Infantry, who died of pneumonia October 16, was one of the old Sixty-nine and Seventy-first National Guard regiments and had served in the latter command for ten years. He was wounded at the second battle of the Marne but returned to the front after three weeks. The wound that killed him was received in the fighting in the Argonne Forest. He had been married to his mother at 280 East Burnside avenue. The Bronx. Captain O'Brien was present at the Tremont Lyceum.

Lieut. Henry R. Blackman of Company A, 118th Infantry, killed in action October 11, was the son of Mrs. Clara Blackman of 295 Fairmont avenue, Jersey City. After leaving Tabor School and the New York Law School he was admitted to the New Jersey Bar in June, 1915. He was a private secretary to Justice Black of the New Jersey Supreme Court when he enlisted in the Fourth New Jersey Infantry in November, 1917. He was in the Meuse-Argonne, and when the regiment was ordered to Aniston, Ala., he was a Battalion Sergeant Major. He went to the officers training school there and received his commission in June.

Two Lieutenant Living in the Forest.

Both Captain Newark, N. J., have been killed in action. Captain Elmer L. Kelly Terhune, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Terhune, 665 Mount Prospect avenue, and Clarence C. Borcher, who was married and lived at 221 Woodside avenue, Liedt. Terhune was born in West Milford two years ago, graduated from Cornell, and was a civil engineer at Peoria, Ill., when he entered the service. He was engaged to Miss Dadey Haucke of Batavia, N. Y. He was a First Lieutenant in the heavy field artillery when he was killed October 8.

Lieut. Borcher Foretold His End.

Lieut. Borcher predicted his own fate in the last letter he wrote his wife. He was dated October 8, five days before he was killed. He said he was going into action and that he had but "one chance in a hundred" of coming out alive. "Do not cry for me, kill it for a great and good cause." My wife wrote to me that I cannot kiss you good-by and be buried on American soil." He was born in Clifton, N. J., twenty-six years ago and was assigned to Company F, 113th Infantry.

General Raymond A. McClure of Company B, 107th Infantry, was a member of the old Seventh Regiment. He lived at 2233 Loring place, The Bronx, and was employed by William J. Grace & Co. A requiem mass was held for him at the Paulist Fathers church, Sixth street and Avenue of the Americas, Saturday. He was a son of John McClure, a civil war veteran, and had two brothers and ten first cousins in the service. Shortly before his death he wrote a letter home in which he told of his company going into action 250 strong and fighting out with but seventeen survivors.

News has been received of the death in action in the Argonne Forest October 7 of Corporal James McVicker Whitney, son of Stephen Whitney and grandson of Mrs. Stephen Suydam Whitney of Morris Plains, N. J. He was not 21 years old. He had been in the ambulance service in July, 1917. He later enlisted in the American Tank Corps and was made a corporal after reaching the front. In writing of his death one of his comrades said:

"He and his tank were missing for several days. Nobody knew anything about him. Then they found the tank and Whit and his driver had both been killed in the tank. I suppose they must have been hit head on by an explosive shell."

Young Whitney was educated at St. Paul's School and at the Manning Military Academy. Two brothers survive him, one of whom, Stephen Whitney, Jr., is ill at a hospital in England, and the other is a young man at school.
